

JIM CLARK RALLY REPORT

For many of the Peugeot Challenge runners it was their first time on Tarmac, top local hope Robbie Pearson getting the best start and hanging on all the way. Like most of the others, Alick Kerr took the cautious approach over the first three tests and then wound up the Peugeot. By second service he was on the pace and battling for second with Euan Thorburn, who had to keep the engine running when the starter motor failed, and Ross Hunter.
